Seattle

A sale at Tininha's, a trunk show at The Tasting Room, plus special offers for Lucky readers. By Kathy Schultz

resident talents

"DIAMOND FOX" DRESS, $198

"FLYER" TOP, $114

PENCIL SKIRT, $150

prairie underground

Davora Lindner and Camilla Eckersley live in Seattle, but they haven't forgotten the Nebraska plains where they grew up. "It might sound odd, but we often think of pioneering women when we design," says Eckersley. "We want to make feminine clothes that are still really practical." The duo's designs feature body-hugging shapes with utilitarian details. Prices, $52 to $200. Available at Olivine Atelier (5344 Ballard Ave. NW, 206-706-4188) and Zebraclub (1901 First Ave., 206-448-7452).

CORDUROY BLAZER, $140

FLAMENCO DRESS, $160

SEQUIN TANK DRESS, $140

sofada

Oregonian Alice Dobson has always gravitated toward refined, midcentury modern design—and this aesthetic informs the clean silhouettes of her clothing collection. "My line is a cross between Vargas girl and Jackie O," she says. "It's a grown-up, sexy lady look." Her fall pieces include long, steel gray dresses and fitted, rust-colored jackets. Prices, $74 to $400. Available at Nuvo Moda (1307 First Ave., 206-684-6886) and Sofada (4623 NE Fremont, Portland, 503-445-2006).
